Description: The Alzheimer Research Forum is the web's most dynamic scientific community dedicated to understanding Alzheimer's disease and related disorders. It also contains a database of providers of antibodies directed against several hundred molecules and proteins of relevant to research on Alzheimer and other neurodegenerative diseases. The web site reports on the latest scientific findings, from basic research to clinical trials; creates and maintains public databases of essential research data and reagents, and produces discussion forums to promote debate, speed the dissemination of new ideas, and break down barriers across the numerous disciplines that can contribute to the global effort to cure Alzheimer's disease. The ARF team of professional science writers and editors, information technology experts, web developers and producers all work closely with our distinguished and diverse Advisory Board to ensure a high-quality of information and services. We very much welcome our readers' participation in all aspects of the web site. Sponsors: The Alzheimer Research Forum is an independent nonprofit organization. It is supported by grants and individual donations.
