Proper Citation: University of Manchester BioAutomation and Biofoundry Core Facility
(RRID:SCR_028059)

Description: Facility accelerates synthetic biology research by automating design-build-test-learn (DBTL) cycles. It enables high-throughput, reproducible strain engineering, metabolic engineering, and protein production, serving academic and industrial partners. Lab automation facility supporting Engineering biology/Synthetic biology pipelines i.e. Directed evolution of proteins and DNA pathway assembly.

Resource Type: core facility, access service resource, service resource

Keywords: ABRF, lab automation facility, synthetic biology, reproducible strain engineering, metabolic engineering, protein production,
