Description: A data management tool which stores, classifies and manages digital resources such as publications, experimental data, presentation files, etc, together with its metadata. A key feature of the software is a high level of extensibility. By installing optional plug-ins, users can customize and extend the usability of the software based on their needs. It has a function of sharing data with open digital archives based on the XooNlps system, such as neuroinformatics platforms in operation and publicly available at J-Node (http://www.neuroinf.jp). The Concierge Project is a part of neuroinformatics research by Laboratory for Neuroinformatics in RIKEN Brain Science Institute. Concierge's primary goal is to encourage research resource sharing in neuroscience communities. A key feature of the software is its pluggable configuration. Based on the basic functions, various applications can be developed as plug-ins. It has already developed several application plug-ins specific to neuroscience research, e.g. literature manager, electronic laboratory notebook, etc.
